OFFICIAL PLEASED WITH GUIDANCE PROGRAM LOCALLY

Program Details Considered
by Dr. L. M. Miller and Directors

NAME ENUMERATOR

Principals of Bucks County Public Schools Will Meet Here Soon

The Bristol borough school board was visited last evening by Dr. Leonard M. Miller, chief of guidance of the Department of Public Instruction of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Dr. Miller went over in detail the guidance program of the Bristol schools, and was highly pleased, and pronounced it satisfactory in practically all details. It was decided to alter the office of high school principal, David Hertzler, and an adjoining room so as to afford more adequate accommodation for such programs.

Fleetwings, Inc., was given the privilege to use a room in the high school building for 120 students to take a "refresher" course in tool designing. The Bristol Concert Association was granted the privilege of using the high school auditorium for a series of concerts this winter. Charles Boyd of the high school faculty, was named school census enumerator.

It was announced that the principals of the public schools in Bucks County will meet in Bristol on November 23rd, at which time they will visit the plants of Fleetwings, Inc., and the Bristol Vocational School. Dinner will be served in the high school cafeteria under the supervision of Mrs. Jean Goff, high school economics instructor.

Due to the illness of President Bradley Ardrey the meeting was presided over by the vice-president, Robert C. Ruchl.

Mary Ann Dobson, Aged
1, Is Celebrant at Party

On Sunday afternoon Mary Ann Dobson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Dobson, Spruce street, had a party in honor of her first birthday anniversary. Refreshments were served and decorations were in keeping with Halloween. Favors were small baskets of candy. Prizes were given to John Schweizer, Louis Pizzulo, Jacqueline Londer and Janice Deltrick.

Others attending were: Rachael Ann White, Ethel Alice Fallon, Ann Conover, Marie Ritchie, Maxine Pizzulo, Linda Hart, Virginia Pizzulo, James Reilly, Edward Davis, Francis and George Fallon, Thomas Dougherty, Joseph Bonner, Wayne Pizzulo, Wayne Schweizer, Robert Pitz.

In the evening, the birthday anniversary of Louis Dobson was celebrated at a family dinner. Covers were laid for ten.

MASQUERADE AFFAIR

Robert Bowen, Garfield street, entertained a group of friends at his home on Saturday evening at a Halloween party. Halloween decorations were used and the evening was enjoyed playing games. Those present: Barbara Neher, Louise Thorne, Janice McEuen, Peggy Wright, Warren Snyder, Jr., William Pearson, Jr., V. Belecki, Harold Thompson, Robert Bowen.

Canteen Opened Here For The Service Men

A service men's canteen was opened Saturday evening in the social room of the Methodist Church. This canteen was started by the "Business Girls' Club" of Bristol to provide entertainment for service men in Bristol.

The room was decorated with Halloween decorations and a social time was enjoyed. The canteen will be open every Saturday evening from 9 p. m. until 12 p. m.

Next Saturday evening music will be furnished by Coast Guards from New Jersey.

Killed in 30-Foot Fall; Contacts Live Wire

Francis Iannotta, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ciro Iannotta, Bryn Mawr, nephew of A. N. Iannotta, and grandson of Saverio Aita, Bristol, was killed Saturday afternoon in Chester when it is reported he fell 30 feet from a scaffold and contacted a live wire of 400 volts at the Chester shipyard of the Sun Shipbuilding Corporation. The young man was employed as a welder.

The deceased was single and lived with his parents at 819 Glenbrook avenue, Bryn Mawr.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at nine o'clock with services in the Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Bryn Mawr, and burial in St. Dennis Cemetery at Ardmore.

In addition to the parents one brother survives.

Number of Guests Are Invited To A Shower

Mrs. William Chance, Swain street, was the honored guest at a shower given at the home of her sister, Mrs. Leonard Dugan, Buckley street, on Thursday evening.

The rooms were attractive with decorations of the Halloween season, and on the end of each streamer attached to the ceiling center was a card on which a poem was written, telling Mrs. Chance where each gift could be found. A social evening was enjoyed with refreshments concluding.

The invitation list included Mrs. George Ashton, Mrs. James Haney, Mrs. James Reilly, Mrs. Kirby Swinehart, Mrs. Philip Mannherz, Mrs. Hugh Barton, Mrs. Alonzo Vanzant, Mrs. Jesse Vanzant, Mrs. Martin Lutz, Mrs. Leonard Bugay, the Misses Dorothy Ritter, Eleanor Dugan, Betty Londer, Roberta Sutton, Dorothy McCollick, Catherine Wade, Ann Oliver and Roseann Berry.

CLOSE WATCH IS KEPT

(This is the second of two articles on how the American soldier in China, Burma, and India is eating.)

By James E. Brown

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

NEW DELHI, Nov. 3.—(INS)—Army medical authorities work with the Quartermaster Corps to insure American troops in China, Burma, and India have a properly balanced diet.

Powdered whole milk is now being shipped to this theatre to make up for a calcium deficiency which occurred through lack of fresh milk in the diet. There are only two dairies in all India which have been given the stamp of approval of the U. S. Army Medical Corps so Americans for the most part are unable to obtain milk which they were

Brewster Tieup Is Blamed On Navy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—James Work, founder, first president and a major stockholder of the Brewster Aeronautical Corporation, yesterday blamed Navy-installed management for the company's failure to meet plane production schedules.

He told a House naval subcommittee, however, that with the installation of West Coast Shipbuilder Henry J. Kaiser as Brewster's president, "I believe the days of buck-passing, and the necessity for buck-passing, are over."

Stoutly defending his own labor policy and management of Brewster's affairs, Work declared that "during the entire period from 1932 until the Navy stepped in, Brewster never had a strike or a slowdown." Raising the question of responsibility for labor disputes after he left the presidency of the corporation and the chairmanship of its board of directors, he said:

"I would be dumb if I didn't realize that I have been accused of starting the strike (in October). I would like to have it thrashed out before this committee."

TWO MASKED PARTIES OCCUR IN CROYDON

Women's Society of Christian Service Has Enjoyable Affair

1 HONORS EVA FREED

CROYDON, Nov. 3.—A Halloween party was given in Wilkinson Methodist Church by the Women's Society of Christian Service on Saturday evening.

The room was gaily decorated with lanterns, black cats, etc. The group held a grand march so that the judges might select the winning costumes.

Prizes were awarded Mrs. Charles Friday, who wore the most original costume; George Lurwick, dressed as "Grandma" was awarded a prize. The best dressed couple, a bride and groom, proved to be Mrs. George Lurwick and Miss Mary Misorech.

David Sperling received the children's prize. He was dressed as "Mortimer Snerd."

Games were enjoyed by the group. The W. S. C. S. served Halloween refreshments.

CROYDON, Nov. 2.—A birthday Halloween party was given on Saturday afternoon at the home of Eva Freed on the occasion of her 12th birthday anniversary. The house was gaily decorated in orange and black. Skeletons, black cats and pumpkins were about.

Games were enjoyed by 16 guests: Violet Kagnick, Lois Rob-

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

Allied 5th Army Increases Hold on Mount Massico

Algiers—The Allied Fifth Army in Italy increased its hold on Mount Massico and seized a foothold on San Croce Mountain today in the drive to smash the western flank of the German defense line guarding Rome. The Fifth gained positions giving them a complete view of the Nazi Garigliano River positions to the north.

At the eastern end of the trans-peninsular battlefield the British Eighth Army increased its pressure on the Nazis and scored some advances. Eighth Army forces near the Adriatic side of Italy solidified their positions in two good bridgeheads over the Trigno River.

The right wing of the Fifth Army at the center of the 90-mile battle line captured Gallo, Pratta and Pratello in an advance all along their sector after breaking through the German Matese mountain line anchor.

In sweeping forward to the San Croce ridge near the western end of the line the Fifth Army advanced five miles north of the captured road junction of Teano. The town of Carinola also was occupied.

Messerschmitt Plant Severely Damaged

Algiers—The Messerschmitt airplane plant at Wiener Neustadt, just below Vienna, was severely damaged and possibly destroyed in yesterday's raid by Flying Fortresses and Liberator bombers, headquarters reported today. The damage was revealed by preliminary photos taken after the attack.

The announcement said the Forts and Liberators encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire and strong German fighter forces over the target area. Incomplete returns showed at least 39 out of a force of 75 Nazi interceptors shot down.

Read the church news every Friday and Saturday in the Courier.

NAVAL COMPARISON

In the tightening battle of the Pacific it is encouraging to note that America's task, tough as it is, will be lightened by the great and growing superiority of the American Navy.

Two years ago the Pacific fleet of the United States, a major part of the nation's sea strength, was inferior numerically to the Japanese fleet. Now this nation has more ships in all classes than the Nipponese and apparently ship for ship the American vessels have more fire power than the enemy craft.

Today, as nearly as can be discovered, Japan has ten battleships, including two new sixteen-gun ships completed since the war began. Another new battleship is nearly completed. America has twenty-one battleships, including eight new sixteen-gun ships and several more nearing completion.

Japan has seven or eight aircraft carriers, including three or four converted auxiliary carriers. America has twelve to sixteen carriers, plus dozens of escort and auxiliary carriers and plane transport vessels.

Japan has thirty to thirty-five cruisers, both heavy and light. America has fifty to sixty of these fighting ships.

Japan has approximately seventy-five destroyers, exclusive of torpedo boats. America has more than 3000 destroyers, not counting torpedo boats. Japan has approximately eighty submarines above the midget type. America has more than double that number.

Most of these American naval vessels are in the Pacific and they are being added to at a rate far greater than Japanese capacity to build ships. With Japan outshipped and out-gunned, the naval phase of the Pacific conflict seems secure.

MEXICO TO GET IN

The Mexican government is studying plans to send an expeditionary force abroad within six months. Some army generals and general staff officers are reported to be the promoters of a plan to put 10,000 volunteers of Mexico's standing army into direct participation in the war.

The government appears to be favorably disposed because it feels that Mexico can not stand aside while other Latin American countries are making preparations. The other nations are Cuba and Brazil.

The recent trip of Gen. Gaspar Dutra, Brazilian minister of war, to the United States, had as its object the exchange of ideas with the American general staff in regard to a Brazilian expeditionary force.

The Mexican troops would be led by their own officers and would be used at first as an occupational force. Eleven thousand Mexicans are now in the United States Army.

Training of Mexican troops has been under way for more than a year and as early as November, 1942, plans were made to prepare soldiers for combat overseas. Should the plan for the expeditionary force be approved by the United States and Mexico, it is predicted that the troops would be sent to the Pacific area.

"THAT KEITH WOMAN"

by PHYLLIS MOORE GALLAGHER

SYNOPSIS

Letty Randolph, society reporter, persuaded distraught Pamela Keith not to cancel her daughter Sandra's debut, scheduled for that afternoon. "That Keith woman," as Letty's mother termed her, had long figured essentially in the news. At 19, her elopement with Wayne Courtney, young medical student, was promptly annulled by her parents. Later, in South America, she met wealthy Richard Keith, who divorced his wife, Gladys Newcomb Keith, so he could marry Pam. Richard was killed in an auto accident soon after their daughter Sandra's birth. Now, twenty years later, after many romantic interludes, Pam was engaged to likable Luke Cramer, though everyone had expected he would marry Gladys, Richard Keith's ex-wife. Letty, en route to Sandra's party, took a short cut through the hedge to the Keith mansion, which adjoined her hotel. She observed the stark fear in Pam's eyes as she welcomed her guests, while Sandra seemed grimly angry, especially when she greeted Victor Corlies, with whom she was in love. Letty was thrilled when Countess Fanella Castigena presented handsome Peter Gibson, but she bristled when he told her he had crashed the party. Later, at a small dinner party, Letty saw that Pam had surrounded herself with the most antagonistic people. They were: Elsie Eustace and her husband Marvin, whose name had been linked romantically with Pam's; Dr. Wayne Courtney, her first husband, recently returned to Washington after fifteen years abroad; Countess Castigena, whose biography had painted Pam in black strokes; supercilious Earle Pines; and Gladys Newcomb, from whom Pam had annexed two men. Letty noticed Reginald, the Keith butler, strangely eyeing Gladys. Sandra had gone on to the club with her deb friends. Pam's frightened manner clung to her, even after Luke Cramer phoned from Philadelphia. Letty is telling the story.

CHAPTER SEVEN

Pamela was talking then: "Luke's—ill," she said. "Flu. He's been in bed all day. When he telephoned me at noon, he told me he was tied up in a business conference. . . ."

"Just like Luke," Elsie Eustace consoled. "He didn't want you to worry about him during the party, Pam."

Gladys asked sharply, almost nervously: "Luke's—ill? What's the matter with him, Pamela? I mean, are you sure he said it was flu? Luke's always had a bad appendix. He should have had it out years ago."

"It's the flu," Pamela said, and glared at Gladys. Then Reginald came in and broke up that ocular duel. I heard him tell Pamela he had made a reservation for her on the midnight plane to Philadelphia. Gladys heard it, too, and her mouth closed into a thin resentful line. I guess she was thinking how she'd like to be going up to Philly to rub Luke's feverish brow.

Suddenly, I thought about Peter Gibson. I'd corner the Countess as soon as I could and find out who Peter was, where he lived, what he did for a living, and why he'd crashed Pamela's party this after-

Baked Beans With Wine Boast Extra Flavor

Baked Beans, Tokay
1 quart dried navy beans
1 teaspoon soda
1 medium onion
1/2 cup molasses
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon dry mustard
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 pound salt pork
1 cup Tokay, Port or Muscatel wine
Soak beans in cold water overnight. Drain, cover with cold water and add baking soda. Bring to the boil and boil fifteen minutes. Drain, cover with fresh water and bring to the boil again. Drain.
Place peeled onion in the casserole or bean pot. Add beans. Combine molasses, brown sugar, seasonings and the wine and pour over the beans. Cut salt pork into small pieces and press into beans. Add enough water so that beans are covered with liquid.
Bake, covered, in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) five hours, adding more water when necessary to keep beans from drying out. Remove cover, bring salt pork to the surface and bake one hour longer.

"THAT KEITH WOMAN"

noon. After all, Peter might have a wife and seven kids for all I knew—and wouldn't I be a chump to stay in love if that was the case!

Then Peter Gibson slid gently out of my thoughts, for Earle Pines, seated on my right at Pamela Keith's dinner party, was demanding my attention. He was talking about Japan, in his usual know-it-all manner. . . . "take their fleet away Wednesday" . . . "the yellow boys never dare attack," etc., etc. Just another before-Pearl-Harbor prophet!

I glanced at my watch. Fifteen-to-ten. Reginald was passing the finger-bowls, putting one in front of me. I had asked Pamela if I might be excused at fifteen-to-ten so I could go back to the hotel, write up Sandra's debut and make my reservation.

ter obstructing my lungs. I don't know what made me stop and turn and look back at that brilliant, lighted mansion. But I did. And then I was holding my breath, my heart pounding. . . .

I saw a figure emerge from behind a gloomy weeping willow that flanked the solarium door, only a few yards from me. The figure crept stealthily across the lawn in back of the house, disappearing under a shadowy tangle of evergreens. An extraordinary impulse, senseless and inexplicable, seized me to follow that figure.

"Fool!" I told myself, "it's probable some bird looking for one of Pamela's pretty maids." Still, that impendable curiosity of mine pulling at the very core of my brain, turned me abruptly around paper's deadline. I caught Pamela's eye finally and pointed to my watch. Pamela smiled and nodded wandy.

I raced upstairs, got my cape and looked around for my evening bag. I searched a good ten minutes, but I couldn't find it. Knowing what I know now, I'd have searched all night before I'd left that house without it. . . .

Finally I hurried out of the room and down the stairs. When I reached the hall, I noticed that Pamela was seated on the petti-pot love seat in the drawing room, the other guests were straggling in one by one, and Reginald was serving coffee. . . .

An intense disquietude came over me as I ran across the lawn toward that little opening in the tall boxwood that leads to the hotel's terrace. All during dinner I had longed to get out under the untroubled night sky where I could breathe with no feeling of impending disaster.

Mrs. Minnie Enslin, Asbury Park.

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

FRUITS will be more reasonably priced next week as a result of wholesale price ceilings, which became effective October 22nd, but supplies may be temporarily curtailed.

Cranberries are now at the height of their season, and apples and grapes are plentiful. Among vegetables, potatoes are still the featured week-end item. Almost all of the other vegetables are more plentiful this week and, therefore, more attractively priced, according to A & P Food Service for Home-makers.

There are pretty good supplies of lamb and veal as well as poultry, especially the smaller-sized chickens. Beef, smoked meats and pork are still scarce.

Containing the more reasonably priced and more easily available items, the following menus are suggested for Sunday dinner.

- No. 1
Stuffed Lamb Roll
Baked Noodles and Spinach
Whole Wheat Bread
Apple Tapioca
Hot Tea
- No. 2
Cream of Spinach Soup
Fricassee of Veal
Sweet Potato Souffle
Broiled Tomatoes
Cracked Wheat Bread
Apple and Cranberry Tarts
Hot Coffee
- No. 3
Fruit Cup
Fried Chicken
Whipped Potatoes
Cauliflower with Cheese Sauce
Hot Roll
One Egg Cake
Hot Coffee

pointed representatives from some churches in this area and from other bodies to serve as a committee to plan details of converting the plot into a park and arrange for upkeep of the same. The individuals named, and the organizations they represent are: Jesse W. Soly Post of the American Legion, George Thorpe, citizens group, Earl Phipps, Neshaminy Methodist Church, C. Wesley Haefner, Grace Episcopal Church, Stanley Buckman; Our Lady of Grace R. C. Church, George Wheeler; and borough council, Samuel J. Hillick. Norman Davis presided at the session, other councilmen present being: Reginald Webb, Walter Fry, A. E. A. Bronson and George Bilger.

Upon motion of Mr. Webb council arranged to have the highway committee members discuss with residents and manufacturing firms in the vicinity the possibility of improving conditions of the streets and lighting in the Ford, Lincoln and Reetz avenues section. Need of an additional light on Ford avenue was also considered, and the secretary was instructed to communicate with the borough solicitor on advisability or possibility of council ordering such installed prior to any formal acceptance of the thoroughfare by the borough.

The treasury balance was given as $101.39.

Bills ordered paid include the following: Henry Palmer, $1.03; George Dicken, tax collector's commission, $95.44; Philadelphia Electric Co., $62.29; return tax made to Wm. Penn Fire Co. on foreign fire insurance, $117.99; annual donation to Wm. Penn Fire Co., $100, total $376.85.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Gaffey)

Pastor

Bristol Presbyterian Church

We thank Thee, O Father, for the "still, small voice" Thou hast placed within us, which urges us toward that which in our experience and in our knowledge is right. We thank Thee for the pain this voice causes us when it is disobeyed.

We thank Thee for the satisfaction it gives us when its admonitions are followed. Grant, O Father, that we might train our consciences on Thee, that our picture of right and wrong might conform with Thy will, and that we, in our daily lives might be impelled toward the pathway in which Thou wouldst have us go. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

with Mrs. M. Dugan, New Buckley street.

Jesse Vanzant, Jr., Millin street, has been confined to his home by illness since Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Murphy who resided on Radcliffe street, have moved to Bristol Terrace No. 2.

Frank Di Palma, Corson street, is a patient in Abington Hospital, under observation.

have," he wrote "and believe me, it is most anything."

In his letter received by Mrs. Howard L. Schuyler, Edison, Pct. VanBuskirk stated that PFC William Wrigley, Jr., Infantry, son of William Wrigley, Justice of the Peace, Edison had been ill with malaria in the hospital, but had recovered and was about to be transferred to another organization. Pct. Wrigley was a star member of the baseball and football teams when he attended the Doylestown High School.

In describing the life at the Quartermaster's Depot where he is stationed, Pct. VanBuskirk wrote that the recreation he enjoyed the most was swimming in the Mediterranean Sea which he mentioned as being very smooth and refreshing.

In spite of the fact that approximately 350,000 gallons of water were consumed daily during the past summer, Doylestown's water supply has been quite good, and at no time was there an indication of a shortage, according to George E. Willard, chairman of the water committee of borough council.

The heavy rain during the week, it was said, had little effect upon the wells and springs at the borough water works, where the pumps are kept in operation constantly in order to keep the reservoir filled.

Four springs and six artesian wells keep the town well supplied with water, and at no time during the summer and fall did they show any indication of running low.

The consumption of water in the county seat is slightly higher during the summer than in the winter, when the daily consumption averages approximately 300,000 gallons.

According to Mr. Willard, the consumption of water in the homes varies. This depends largely upon the number of persons in the families. Some families consume as low as 500 gallons monthly, and others as high as 8,000 gallons. Mr. Willard explained approximately 1,300 families are supplied with water here.

Feeding U. S. Troops In China Is Difficult

used to drinking in the United States.

Powdered milk, used properly, can make up this deficiency, and, although it is not quite as palatable as fresh milk, it may be improved by the addition of a small amount of flavoring such as vanilla.

Approximately two percent of all the items on the "B" ration which is supplied to American troops in this area are dehydrated foods. The "B" ration is the Regular Army ration which is supplied to our troops in posts throughout the United States.

The only difference between this and the "A" ration, which is seldom used by the Army today, is that the "B" ration has a few perishable items eliminated. Dehydrated foods have never been popular with soldiers for several reasons, most important of which is that they demand special preparation. Cooks in this theatre have not had the training necessary to prepare these dehydrated products properly.

Other difficulties which were not thought of when they were prepared for shipment in the United States crop up in the handling of dehydrated foods. Dehydrated potatoes were flown at a high altitude so American troops in China. The reduction of pressure in the air caused the cans in which the potatoes were packed to burst. Measures are being taken to correct this, but meanwhile it is not possible to fly these foods into China.

Feeding our troops in China is much more difficult than feeding those who are stationed in India. Army medical authorities insist that all food eaten by troops in China must be thoroughly boiled as a precaution against cholera and typhoid. No fresh fruit can be eaten unless it is stewed.

Delicious looking red tomatoes arrive at army messes, and it is necessary to reduce them to a mushy and boiled state for fear of disease. It is hard on the men who are stationed in China, but it is better than having them hospitalized with cholera or typhoid.

Every American soldier in China receives one vitamin tablet a day to make up for any deficiencies which may exist in diet. This is also given to flying crews in other sections of the theatre who go out on combat missions.

Cooking the food is another important phase of the operation, and, as Army personnel is limited, and it is desirable to use as few of them as possible for purely household tasks, Indian and Chinese cooks have been hired and taught to cook American meals.

The drawback to the employment of Indian and Chinese cooks is that if a unit had to move quickly the natives would present a problem. One mess sergeant had the only practical answer to this question:

"If we had to pull out in a hurry," he said, "I'd just put all the Indian cooks in a truck and tell them we were going on a maneuver about 10 miles away. Then I'd like to see them try and get away."

Three types of emergency field rations are supplied to American troops in this theatre. Ten days' supply of the "C" ration, old type Army issue of three cans per day per man is authorized.

The Quartermaster is authorized to issue a 3-day supply of the type "D" field ration. This is a heavily concentrated chocolate bar ration which supplies a man with enough food value to keep going without any other food for several days.

In countries such as India and China it is necessary to keep a large supply of foodstuffs in reserve at all times. Floods may cut whole areas off from their sources of supply. An enemy attack or a famine could produce the same results. To guard against shortages a 90-day reserve of all "B" ration items is kept on hand by all units.

Indian newspapers have leveled some criticism at the British and American armies for using food which is sorely needed by the Indian population itself. This is a false assumption. The U. S. Army consumes American type food, very little of which is eaten by the Indian population.

Diet of the Indians consists mostly of rice and chappatti, which is flour baked into a breadlike substance. The starvation which exists in Bengal is not the result of any drain which the American army has made on the foodstuffs of the nation. Since the Hindus, who make a major portion of the population, do not eat meat, the use of cattle has no effect on the Indian food situation.

It is planned to ship more and more of the food for American troops in this theatre direct from the United States. As the strength of the American forces increases, it will be impossible for them to live off the land to the extent which they have up to the present.

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—Whether Hollywood personalities are garbed formally, in sports attire or just general daytime wear, they are sure to present some new touch that sets an ensemble apart.

chic dress of beige sheer wool. It was styled with a sidepart, slim skirt and soft bodice featuring bracelet-length raglan sleeves and high, round collarless neckline. Close to the throatline, Alexis had clipped a stunning gold ornament consisting of a fine chain, a jeweled-headed gold dagger and a small compass. A sable scarf, brown suede accessories and matching suede turban completed the striking ensemble.

Launching at The Players the other day, lovely Irene Manning added a bright touch to her cafe au lait gabardine suit with hat and gloves of green, red, blue and cream.

The hat was a tall-crowned sailor with brim turned up an inch around the edge. Gold bow earrings set with rubies were matched with a lapel clip, and she rounded out the costume with a cream-colored crepe blouse and green kid shoes accented with gold nailheads. Miss Manning has just completed a role in Warner's "Shine On Harvest Moon."

Grace Allen looked smart recently in a dinner set of royal blue suede-cloth with jet trimmed laces in a Basque manner at the jacket closing. Topping the suit was a Watteau shepherdess hat of blue slipper satin, which was accented with a royal blue ostrich feather at one side of the crown. Aquamarine suede gloves were highlighted with a diamond and sapphire bracelet worn on the outside of one gloved wrist.
